

Executives in Residence

Creating Future ESA Leaders

AESA's Executives in Residence (EIR) Program is a year-long, immersive leadership experience designed to cultivate the next generation of ESA leaders. This program addresses the critical national need for skilled, politically engaged, and visionary educational administrators who can guide their agencies with confidence and foster collaboration across regional and national networks.

Program Highlights

Mentorship

Learn directly from experienced ESA CEOs.

Cohort Learning

Share ideas, programs, and best practices with peers nationwide.

Leadership in Action

Observe ESA leaders, engage in projects, and explore the internal and external workings of agencies.

Focus Areas

Equity and opportunity for all learners, service quality and accessibility, virtual and hybrid program development, and emerging regional challenges.
